Jeff Hagerman Named One of Indy's Best and Brightest

INDIANAPOLIS – Jeff Hagerman, President of GDH and Executive Vice President of Hagerman Construction, was recognized as one of Indy's Best and Brightest under the age of 40 at a luncheon Sept. 19 at the Marriot in downtown Indianapolis. A fundraiser for Junior Achievement of Central Indiana, the luncheon featured keynote speaker Mark Cuban, co-founder of HDNet and owner of the Dallas Mavericks.

Hagerman was noted for his leadership of family-owned companies Hagerman Construction and GDH as well as a development firm he co-owns called JS&H. A native of Fort Wayne, Hagerman is a 1989 graduate of North Side High School. Junior Achievement of Central Indiana Inc. is a non-profit organization in affiliation with Junior Achievement Worldwide. The organization's purpose is to educate and inspire young people to value free enterprise, business, and economics to improve the quality of their lives. Hagerman Construction and GDH are part of The Hagerman Group, a general contractor and construction manager with locations in Indianapolis and Fort Wayne.
